

Let's Talk About Cost Per Square Foot

We hear this question a lot—and while it seems like a simple way to estimate cost, custom homes don't work that way.

Unlike production builders who use repeat plans and fixed options, custom homes are designed for one client, one piece of land, and one vision. That means the price per square foot depends on:

- What's included in the square footage (garage, basement, outdoor space?)
- Site conditions (excavation, utilities, permits)
- Design complexity and level of finishes

Rather than give you a guess, we take time to understand your vision, then show examples of similar homes to give a realistic estimate. It's a better, smarter way to plan—and worth the conversation.
